

Dr. Sydney Dodd, Lecturer in Veterinary Pathology and Bacteriology, died on the 20th October. The following resolution was adopted at a meeting of the Senate held on the 1st November:—

The Senate desires to place on record its sense of the loss sustained by the death of Dr. Sydney Dodd, F.R.C.V.S., late Lecturer in Veterinary Pathology and Bacteriology and Honorary Lecturer in Preventive Medicine. Dr. Dodd entered the service of the University in 1910 shortly after the establishment of the Department of Veterinary Science. A man of quiet, unassuming, and modest bearing, he was popular with his students and was beloved by his colleagues. During the sixteen years in which he served the University he rendered eminent service to the Department of Veterinary Science and to the Medical School, and proved himself to be an earnest student of research. His death is a serious loss to the University, to the Veterinary Science profession and to Science in general.

Mrs. Badham, widow of the late Dr. Charles Badham who held the Chair of Classics and Logic from 1867 to 1883, passed away during the year after attaining an age of 90 years.
